The following is a summary of Decree No 253,500/1951 (VI. 28) Elm. M., of the Hungarian Ministry of Food, relative to the disposition of the 1951 grain crop. This decree implements Decree No 3,440/1947 (III. 18.) M. E., of the Hungarian Council of Ministers.

Each farmer is entitled to retain for household use the following quantities of wheat or rye: 220 kilograms for each person over 6 years of age, 160 kilograms for each child between one and 6 years of age, and 13.5 kilograms for each child under one year of age.

The following additional quantities of wheat or rye may be retained from compulsory delivery:

1. One hundred kilograms of wheat and 100 kilograms of rye, respectively, per cadastral yoke for seed.
2. Per-capita rations of contract laborers.
3. Per-capita rations of the land owner and his dependents in case the farm is a leasehold, provided that the landlord is unable to cultivate the farm personally.
4. Per-capita rations of persons entitled to compensation in kind, on the basis of a court order.
5. Per-capita rations of workers on state farms.
6. Per-capita rations of the members of producers' cooperatives and dependents of members.
7. In all other agricultural enterprises (owned by churches, industrial enterprises, cooperatives, etc.), per-capita rations may be retained only for persons actively engaged in farming.

STAT

It is prohibited to use per-capita rations or seed for any other purpose.

Milling permits are issued by the executive committees of the local councils. The per-capita rations of persons entitled to milling privilege are augmented by the amount of the milling toll.

The amount of bread grain over and above the amount of compulsory delivery may be sold to a state collecting station only. Sale of bread grain to other persons or agencies is prohibited.

Persons entitled to milling privilege may exchange their per-capita rations, as well as surplus bread grain over and above delivery quotas, among one another.

Bread grains, both raw and processed, may not be used for fodder. Bread grains, barley, and oats may be used for alcohol production or for other industrial purposes with the permission of the Minister of Food only.

Transportation of bread grains, flour, barley, and oats from one city or town to another is subject to license issued by the executive committee of the local or county council.

Infraction of the provisions of this decree is punishable by imprisonment up to 5 years.
